Alzheimer's Society Information for Candidates

Alzheimer's and Dementia

Alzheimer's Society is concerned with all forms of dementia, of which Alzheimer's is the most common. Structural and chemical changes in the brain are responsible for the devastating effects of dementia which include deterioration of memory, confusion over time and place, changes in personality and behaviour together with the loss of everyday skills such as driving or telling the time and, as the condition progresses, the ability to wash or dress or even recognise friends.

More than 700,000 people in the UK have some form of dementia - one in 20 of those aged 65 or more and one in five of the over 80s. As the population ages we expect this figure to rise and demand for specific services to grow.

Alzheimer's Society

Alzheimer's Society is the leading national care and research charity for people with all forms of dementia, their families and carers. We offer support, give information and advice, run day care and home care services, campaign for adequate benefits, proper assessment and high quality care and we fund research into the causes and possible treatments for dementia.

The Society delivers its services through a combination of national and local activity and last year provided help to over 100,000 people.

Alzheimer's Society is made up of approximately 240 local branch operations, varying in size from £10k to £600k pa, supported by a central office based in London. We employ approximately 1,800 staff and benefit from the time and commitment of up to 5,000 volunteers covering a range of duties from direct care to finance. The Society has grown to this size in under 30 years, and is still ambitious. The challenge is to build on its successes, to actively pursue its growth and develop services across the country, whilst at the same time improving governance arrangements and the management of risk.

Department of Health demonstrator sites

The government's recent National Dementia Strategy recommended the establishment of demonstrator sites where a range of different models of services for people with dementia and their carers will be evaluated. The Society will be involved in the delivery of services at a number of these sites. People with dementia have told us of the importance of good quality local support information and have developed a tool, called Guidebook, for collecting, recording and sharing of this information which will be piloted and tested over the next year at those sites.

Job Application Guidelines

Alzheimer's Society aims to be an equal opportunities employer. We aim to treat every applicant fairly. The information you provide in your application form is the only information we will use in deciding whether or not you will be invited for interview, so it is important that you complete it with care. To help you, please follow these guidelines.

1. Please complete all sections of the form.
2. Please complete the application form in black ink, as it will be photocopied. Do not stick or glue paper to the back of the form – it gets caught in the photocopier. Please add a separate piece of paper instead.
3. After reading the person specification and job description, think carefully about your application and consider to what extent you have the skills and experience necessary to meet the requirements of the post.
4. Your last and present post allows you the opportunity to tell us about the work you are doing or have done in the past. Be as brief as you can, and use the personal statement at the back of the form to describe in more depth your skills, knowledge and experience relevant to the job.
5. Under the section 'Education, qualifications and training' you are asked to state your qualifications or name a course that you attended. We do not need a full account of your education since your junior school days. It is sufficient to state that you have a specific number of 'A' levels and GCSEs unless you are asked for a specific qualification on the person specification, such as GCSE English. You should mention qualifications or training relevant to the post you are applying for.
6. The personal statement is an important part of the application form and should be used to tell us how you meet the person specification. Always remember to specify your responsibilities rather than those of your section or department. Remember to explain how your current or previous experiences relate to the job you are applying for.
7. Please ensure that your completed application form is returned by 5pm on the closing date stated on the advertisement. Do not attach any other documentation apart from the equal opportunity monitoring form. Any attachments, such as CVs, references or photocopies of your qualifications, will be disregarded and will not be seen by the selection panel.
8. In order to make good use of the charity's money, your application will not be acknowledged unless you enclose a stamped addressed postcard or similar, nor will you hear from us unless you are selected to attend for interview.
