

Join our campaign for more investment in dementia research

Dementia research in the UK is a low priority and desperately under funded. The government invests eight times less in dementia research than cancer research.

If we want to see the same advancements in dementia treatment and care as we have seen for cancer, we must invest now.

Why we need your help?

Greater investment in dementia research is essential to provide improved health and care services for people with dementia today, better treatments tomorrow and, ultimately, a cure for dementia.

It is vital to have a more ambitious plan for driving forward dementia research in the UK - but all our political parties need to grasp the mettle and make dementia research a bigger priority.
